UP-N-DOWN 290

By Marty

The most wonderful season of the year is upon us! The time when we are called on to shift gears, both mentally and physically, to participate in the ultimate celebration called Christmas.

The mental part is the hardest. With all of the goings on, preparations, scheduling and participations, it's easy to lose sight of the real purpose for all of this fuss. We Christians need to make sure that we pause often to reflect upon the meaning of that precious gift we received nearly two thousand years ago, and that we pass the significance along to our youngsters. What a sad thing it would be to let the celebration overshadow the meaning of it all. Think about it.

Now, the physical endurance required at Christmas is considerable also. If your December calendar looks anything like ours, it's really something to behold. Cheri and I make it a point to try and jot down, on a daily basis, all of the affairs to which we are invited or welcome, and then we transcribe our lists on to the big calendar we have tacked up on the inside of our bedroom door. On this list, I can see family Christmas parties, along with church celebrations, civic events, fraternal and service club socials, business receptions and scheduled shopping trips, all in addition to our normal business schedules.

We want to participate in every one of these events, because we love being involved with our family, friends and neighbors, especially this special time of year. However, several minor problems tend to crop up about now. I see by the calendar that we have 14 days until Christmas and about 30 events scheduled between now and then. It doesn't take a mathematical wizard to tell me that we aren't going to make all of them. Problem is, how do we decide which ones to attend? Obviously, some sort of priority system needs to be applied here, and this is one that I heard about many years ago. I have used it often especially

Santa: He Came, He Saw, He Conquered!

The face of Heather Devine tells a wonderful Christmas story - the beauty of Santa Claus. Along with many other Hempstead children, Heather welcomed the Christmas Spirit to town on Thursday evening. Santa arrived courtesy of the Hempstead Chamber of Commerce. (See Article, Page 10)

Meredith and Russell Holtz, along with mother Peggy, were captivated by Santa during his visit to Waller on Saturday afternoon. Despite the heat and a pressing time schedule, the jolly old elf posed patiently as hundreds of children joined Meredith and Russell in having pictures taken. The Waller Chamber of Commerce sponsored the visit. (See Article, Page 11)

One Point Separates Bobcats From Title

The Hempstead Bobcats crash onto the field, ready to do battle with the Sweeney Bobcats for state quarterfinal honors on Friday night. The Bobcats proved their string of victories was no fluke during the wildest game of their season, losing by only one point - 35 - 34 in the final seconds. (Photo by Mike McDonald)

Spectacular running back Harvey Williams heads for the goal line on an 80-yard run that put the Bobcats in the lead, 34 - 21 over the Sweeney Bobcats in Friday night's quarterfinal game. Hempstead's heralded back carried 21 times for 184 yards, bringing his rushing total to 1,922 yards. (Photo by Angie Pfeiffer)

By Sallie Planty

One minute and 56 seconds remained on the clock and the Bobcats held a 13-point lead in this all important quarter final game against Sweeney. Hempstead fans and players alike knew it was over. Their heads were filled with the victory and some people in the crowd were beginning to think about next week and the semifinals against Daingerfield or Gladewater.

Everybody thought it was over except the "Wandering Bulldogs" of Sweeney. In a matter of 29 seconds, quarterback Brett Simpson connected with two touchdown passes to rob the Bobcats of their joy and a chance to go on for the state title.

The final score 35 - 34.

For those of us who have followed the Hempstead club's advance through the Class 3-A ranks, it was worse than a 50-point loss. At least when you're losing all the way you have time to adjust to defeat. It's sadder than all of Hades to have victory ripped from your grasp in the final seconds.

The game had a story to tell, though. If there were any diehards left who doubted the power of the Bobcats, who thought that maybe they weren't as good as the scores kept saying they were, the fact that Sweeney squeaked through with a one point advantage was sure to have made believers out of them.

Hempstead supporters have had every right to brag on their boys all season long. They are, indeed, a powerhouse.

Chamber of Commerce Honors Lee M. Fowler

the Bluebonnet Festival in the spring

The Chamber of Commerce reminds business owners of the city-wide shopping night this Thursday, Dec. 13. Merchants are also encouraged to participate in the gift certificate drawing, furnished by the chamber. Registration forms can be obtained by calling Mary Santerre, The Hempstead Heritage House. Registration blanks are due at the Citizens State Bank by 10 a.m. on Monday, Dec. 24. The drawing will be held that day at noon.

Members and visitors attending the Dec. 3 meeting included Dr. Hal Black, Diane Ladig, David Fife, Beatrice Sowell, James Hauck, Mary Santerre, Ginger Snider, Roy Wiesner, Jim Josey, Lee Macy Fowler Jr., David Sneller, Patricia Murphy, Dorothy Romeo, Bella Dua Frenkil and Margaret Devine.

The next meeting will be held in mid-January, with the exact day and time to be announced.

Lee Fowler was the recipient of a Special Citizen award presented by members of the Hempstead Chamber of Commerce during the group's Dec. 3 meeting at The Rustic Oak.

Fowler, founder of Fowler's Supermarket and Fowler's Liquor Store of Hempstead, was honored for his extensive civic and church involvement in the community. Lee Macy Fowler accepted the award on behalf of his father.

Another highlight of the evening was the drawing for a three-wheeler, donated by the chamber in connection with the fall fair activities. Rodney L. Owen of Riverwood was the winner.

In other business, final plans were made for Santa's visit, which took place on Thursday, Dec. 6, and members reviewed the success of the Dec. 1 Sidewalk Festival. Merchants were pleased with the public response to the sale and are interested in scheduling another sale, possibly in conjunction with

Preventing Frozen Pipes

We've already experienced a few frigid nights and you may have already taken the steps that can save you time, trouble and money later - preventing your water pipes from freezing and/or bursting. If you managed to get through with a minimum of effort, here are some tips that you might like to warm up to:

- Put adequate insulation around pipes that are vulnerable to cold air.

- Wrap heat tapes (approved by an independent testing organization such as Underwriters Laboratories Inc.) around those pipes.

- If practical, use an indoor valve to shut off and drain the water supply to outdoor faucets. This will prevent freezing in a short span of pipe just inside the house from the faucet. At minimum, disconnect garden hoses from faucets to release accumulated water.

- Keep water dripping or trickling from the faucet farthest from where a water main enters your house - usually near your water meter. This will keep water moving through most of your plumbing and discourage freezing.

- If you have pipes that aren't insulated in an exterior wall near a sink, leave the cabinet doors under the sink open to let warm air in.

- If you plan to be away for several days, keep your heat on - not necessarily full blast, but high enough to discourage freezing of pipes. Ask a neighbor to come in and check daily to make sure the heat is still on.

- An alternate plan if you're leaving: Shut off the water, drain the water supply by opening a faucet at the lowest point in the house, and put antifreeze in the toilet bowl and traps under the sink and tub - BUT keep it away from pipes that carry drinking water.

Waller C of C Contest Will Be Extended

The Waller Chamber of Commerce has announced that judging in the home and business decorating contest will take place on Saturday, Dec. 15. This is a week's extension, to allow more residents and businesspeople to enter.

In making the announcement, a Chamber spokeswoman said that the extension was being made at the request of several people who wished to participate.

Anyone wishing to enter a house or business in the contest may call Chamber President Tim Phelan at 372-3661 or the Chamber office at 372-9701.

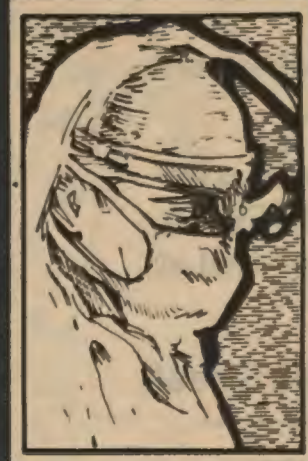

Library Has Gift For Patrons

The staff of the Waller County Library would like to wish everyone a joyous Christmas and a very happy and prosperous New Year.

As part of the Christmas spirit, the library will not be collecting fines on overdue books during the week of Dec. 17 through Dec. 21. Anyone may return their overdue books, no matter how overdue they are, without having to pay a fine!

Hempstead Kids Meet St. Nicholas

Patricia Murphy of Patricia's Fine Jewelry receives a plaque for best indoor decoration from Dr. Hal Black, president of the Hempstead Chamber of Commerce

Santa Claus arrives from the North Pole via Hempstead fire truck to a welcoming crowd of youngsters and parents. The night was cold, but all hearts were warmed by the friendly visitor.

The sun had set, leaving an orange tint in the Western sky and, there, rising above the Christmas tree, was a nearly full moon. The sun had taken its warmth to the other side of the world and the evening air was clear and cold. It was the kind of night one would expect to herald a visit from Santa Claus.

Last Thursday evening, a small, but enthusiastic crowd gathered at the city Christmas tree in Hempstead and awaited the arrival of the visitor from the North Pole.

Hempstead Chamber of Commerce President Dr. Hal Black welcomed the crowd before the beautifully decorated tree as a cherubic choir of pre-schoolers, kindergartners and first graders from Community Chapel sang carols and wished all a Merry Christmas.

Then, sirens sounded in the distance and the flashing lights of a Hempstead Police Department patrol car came into view. Behind it, also with lights flashing, was the fire truck carrying a precious cargo.

The eyes of the children told it all. It was a magic moment, this arrival of Santa Claus, and when he got down from the truck, the children parted, making an aisle for him to walk to the hay-covered wagon where his rocking chair waited.

He listened to their Christmas wishes and posed for Polaroid shots - taken by members of the Chamber of Commerce - with them on his lap.

What a marvelous way to open the holiday season!

The people who brought us this wonderful night will appreciate your remembrance when you're shopping in the weeks to come. Many Hempstead businesses will be open until 9 p.m. this Thursday for your convenience.

Waller Kids Greet Santa and Snow

Ranch Country Girl Scouts march in the Waller Christmas Festival parade on Saturday - all wrapped-up and be-ribboned, suitable for placing under the tree.

The inevitable snowball fight erupted as soon as there was enough of the white stuff for packing, during Waller's Christmas Festival Saturday. Children and adults joined in, throwing in any and all directions. In this war, everybody was the enemy!

By Sallie Planty

It was a perfect day for a snow-storm. The weatherman had promised - and delivered - cloudless skies, bright sunshine and temperatures in the 70s. But, Santa Claus had promised snow - and he delivered, too. It came right on schedule, without a gathering of dark clouds, without a cold northerly blowing and without the slightest shift in temperature.

You know, of course, that it was no ordinary snow that fell on Waller Saturday afternoon. It was pure, unadulterated magic snow - straight from the North Pole, courtesy of Santa Claus, his helpers and the members of the Waller Chamber of Commerce.

Saturday marked the third annual Christmas Festival in Waller and the number of participants and watchers has increased over the years. Even so, Waller youngsters still seemed awed by the whole thing. The consensus among the adults in the crowd was that from far away, Santa is to be smiled at;

up close, Santa is to be cried at. As it falls, snow is to be delighted in; once on the ground, snow is to be used to make weapons.

There was a brisk business in Cokes and hotdogs and pictures with St. Nick, who sweltered in his arctic outfit, only a park's length from snow-covered children wearing shorts and t-shirts.

All in all, it was a fine time for everyone. It was a chance for those of us who are well acquainted with snow to remember its good and bad sides. It gave us an opportunity to visit with friends as our children cavorted in the park and took turns sitting on Santa's lap. It was a fine time to thank God for small town living and appreciate the work that went into bringing Santa and the snow to Waller.

It's an event people will be talking about for days to come and a very good reason for doing business here at home, where people care enough to give the community the very best.

New Jaycees Club To Meet This Thursday

The newly formed Hempstead chapter of the Jaycees will meet at 7:30 p.m. this Thursday, Dec. 13, in the conference room of Lawrence Marshall's. The group was formed during a well-attended meeting held Nov. 26.

Jaycees is a national organization with more than 300,000 members in 7,000 local chapters. They conduct projects and programs that are geared to building better people to meet the needs of their communities.

Originally called the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and open to young men between the ages of 18 and 35, the organization was nicknamed the J.C.'s. Over the years, this evolved into the present name, Jaycees. The basic goals of the group leadership training and service to the community have remained constant.

The Jaycee Creed involves faith in God, the brotherhood of man, economic justice through free enterprise, a government of laws, the value of the human personality, and service to humanity.

Young men in this area who hold similar standards are invited to attend the Thursday meeting.

After The Heart Attack...

By Mustafa S. Mandviwala, M.D.
While today's public is better informed about heart attacks, the individual who himself has suffered a myocardial infarction often has many questions concerning his own situation.

With the use of various nuclear imaging techniques, limited stress tests, and the advice of a cardiologist these questions can and should be answered.

--The cardiac patient usually inquires about the extent of heart damage and the expected recovery period. Generally speaking, patients with simple heart attacks have a relatively small amount of damage and a better prognosis. Once the patient gets to the hospital the major crisis is probably over, and the long-term survival of the simple heart attack patient can be modified with changes in lifestyle, weight, smoking, hypertension and cholesterol, triglyceride levels, and use of some medicines.

--The question of when can the patient return to work often arises. Besides the extent of the heart attack, this depends on the educational background, work status prior to the heart attack, job satisfaction and the social benefits of not returning to work.

--The degree of exercise is another often asked question. Most individuals with uncomplicated heart attacks can gradually increase their predischARGE hospital stress test. It is extremely important to achieve ideal body weight, so one of the first exercises the cardiac patient may need to do is push himself away from the table.

After the individual is able to walk an uninterrupted mile, it may be advisable to join a scheduled exercise program, which puts the patient in a monitored situation for the first few months. Isometric exercises are generally not advisable since they increase resistance of the blood flow to the vessels and may result in heart beat irregularities. Jogging may be initiated by walking slowly and then gradually building oneself up. Swimming and bicycling are other good methods of exercise.

Generally, patients can participate in sports after gradually building themselves up. However, it is not advisable to participate in competitive sports.

--The cardiologist is invariably asked about diet. Generally speaking, all red meat and many kinds of shellfish are high in cholesterol, and the individual should exercise caution in eating these foods. Refined sugars should be curtailed since they increase triglyceride levels, and unsaturated fat should be used. Prudent, but not rigid, diet is advised.

--The question of sex usually arises. The risk of engaging in sex with one's own partner in a known environment is considered safe. However, there have been reported deaths during extramarital relationships.

--Another often-asked question concerns insurability. There are companies that will insure the patient at a higher premium based on fitness.

All in all, though, prevention is better than cure, good living habits after the heart attack apply just as much, or probably more imperatively than, before the heart attack.

Cook's Corner Festive Dessert With A Real French Flair

Here's a novel dessert you'll want to include in your holiday menus. It's a cream puff filled with fruit and instant toasted coconut pudding and pie filling. It only looks difficult to make, the pastry and filling are practically foolproof. You can make this tasty dessert in advance and keep it in the refrigerator until you're ready to serve. This way you'll have more time for your guests.

Festive Coconut Cream Puff (makes 12 servings)

Cream Puff:

1 cup water	1 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 cup margarine	4 eggs
1 1/2 teaspoons sugar	1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Filling:

1 (5-ounce) package of Toasted Coconut Pudding & Pie Filling
2 cups milk
1 cup heavy cream
2 medium bananas, sliced
1 1/2 cups frozen strawberries, thawed and coarsely chopped or 1 cup sliced fresh strawberries.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. On large greased and floured baking sheet, draw circle, using the bottom of 9-inch pie plate as a guide.

To make cream puffs, in medium saucepan, bring water, margarine and sugar to a boil. Blend in flour, stirring rapidly until mixture leaves sides of pan and forms a ball. Remove from heat. Beat in eggs, one at a time, until well mixed. Stir in vanilla.

Drop 1/4 cup mixture in circle on baking sheet; repeat with remaining batter, placing puffs side-by-side to form ring. Bake 35 to 40 minutes or until puffed and golden. Turn off oven; let stand in oven 10 minutes. Remove ring from baking sheet; cool on wire rack in draft-free place.

For filling, in med. bowl, combine instant pudding & pie filling, milk and heavy cream. Beat at medium speed of electric mixer for 4 minutes; beat at high speed for an additional 1 minute. Chill 1 hour.

Carefully cut cooked cream puff ring horizontally in half; set top aside. Mix bananas into prepared pudding, spoon into bottom of ring; top with strawberries. Replace top; sprinkle with confectioner's sugar. If desired, fill center of ring with fruit pieces. Chill until ready to serve.
