VOL I NO 35 WEDNESDAY, APRIL 3, 1985

UP-N-DOWN 290

By Marty

When I first moved to Waller County, back in 1972, I was working in an office on the West Loop in Houston, and I made the drive up and down Hwy 290 every work day.

One day, while coming home, I saw a small sign tacked to a post just east of Hockley, "Boy's Country", it said, with an arrow pointing north up Roberts Road I remember being slightly curious at the time, but I soon forgot about it in my rush to get home for supper.

Once in a while, over the next several months, I would spot that small sign and say to myself, "I wonder what Boy's Country is?" but I never had time to explore for myself. Then one Friday morning in late January it snowed. Remember the two snowstorms we had in early '73? I slipped and slid my way in to the office, only to find that most of our company's staff had stayed home with their kids, to play in the snow, so I worked a few hours, then decided to head for the house early.

As I approached Hockley, the little sign once again did its job, and this time I couldn't resist the urge to find out about this mysterious "Boy's Country", once and for all. I drove the two miles up Roberts Road, and pulled in at another small sign tacked up on the fence. There was on long building with two mobile homes behind it, and several boys of various sizes, busy converting the remaining snow into snowballs. I was met by the kindest man I have ever known, and he seemed pleased that I had stopped, and was eager to tell me all about this new and unique operation.

The facility had been built a year or two earlier with another purpose in mind, but that project had failed, according to my host, the Reverend Jack Brewer. "Brother Jack", as the boys called him, had been working on the ministerial staff at a church in Houston, but had wanted to start a home in the country to give young boys an opportunity to live and grow up in a healthy christian

Herbert Johnson Endorsed For Council

The upcoming election in Hempstead is an important one on many levels. The people running for election or re-election are doing so for all the right reasons - they want to serve their community. They are all intelligent, personable and hard-working individuals.

Taking all this into consideration, and after much thought, the Waller County Hotline Press wishes to endorse the candidacy of Herbert Johnson for councilman, Position 5.

This decision has not been a hasty one. We have spoken to the candidates. We have studied the issues and the voting record of the incumbent and feel that, at this point in the city's progress, Hempstead cannot afford to lose a man of Herbert Johnson's expertise. His knowledge of federal grant procurement has proven its worth in the past and will be invaluable in the coming years as the city works toward completion of much needed improvements to its water and sewer facilities.

The importance of Johnson's contributions in this area cannot be over-emphasized. Other cities, both larger and smaller than Hempstead, have been forced to hire firms or individuals to represent them in seeking grants, filling out the necessary forms and directing grant requests to the proper governmental agencies. The expense of hiring this kind of help has been borne by the taxpayers of those cities.

Johnson has shown his desire to work for the excellence of Hempstead's future, through his persuasive support of a professional, full-time police department and an Industrial Development Commission.

Hempstead now has a police force it can be proud of and there has been a concerted effort to attract new businesses to the community. The future looks bright, as projects begun during the past few years near completion.

We have also spoken to many of Johnson's constituents and they have indicated that he has always voted with them in mind and has always been receptive to their questions and comments. He has not forgotten why he was elected, nor by whom, and that is refreshing in politics on any level.

We urge you to vote on Saturday, April 6. When you step into the voting booth, you will be voting your conscience and you will be voting for the future of your city. Voting is more than a right and a duty, it is an opportunity to decide what direction Hempstead will take in the next couple of years.

We think Herbert Johnson is stepping in the right direction, with the good of all the citizens of Hempstead at heart.

A & M Faculty, Students Host To Waller Chamber

By Cheri Cole

The Waller Area Chamber of Commerce held a dinner meeting on March 26 in Alumni Hall at Prairie View A&M University. About 30 members and 10 guests from the university faculty attended.

Dr. Percy Pierre, president of P.V. A&M, spoke to the chamber on the changing role of the university in the community. He reviewed the new programs for student training in technical engineering, computer processing and extended activity in research in community economics.

Dr. Pierre described several new buildings that will be on campus in the next few years. The new building that will be the most visible atmosphere, after their home lives in the city had gone sour. The idea was to have this home be as self-sufficient as possible, by having the boys raise food animals, fruits and vegetables, and learn various mechanical and agricultural skills.

I could write volumes about those early days, and my good fortune for having gotten involved, but I'll resist the temptation to turn this column into the book that needs to be written about this wonderful facility.

Over the years, Boy's Country has grown into one of the finest homes for young people available anywhere in the country, due to the dedicated efforts of Brother Jack, Bill Hawkins, and the ever-growing staff required to keep it on track. The facilities have grown and improved over the years in an attempt to meet the overwhelming needs of young people, and the money has always come along somehow, due to the generous hearts of an increasing number of people and organizations willing to share God's bounty with these youngsters.

Girl's Country has opened its doors and heart to young girls needing a break from some pretty sorry home environments, and it too continues to grow and develop.

I've watched our local church, service and fraternal groups get involved, one by one, and have seen the great joy that can come from helping young people to help themselves. It has been a real pleasure to visit out there from time to time, and see the growth and development take place over the years, but the really important thing to realize, is that the originators of the project, and the core of early staff members, have never gotten off the track they laid out many years ago. The fine goals that were set back then, are still being pursued today, and our community is the richer for their having been here.

If you haven't already done so, I suggest that you enrich your life soon, by pulling off 290 at Roberts Road, and seeing for yourself, this treasure we have in our area.

See you up - down the road.

Marty

Records of people dancing exist in cave paintings in northern Spain. Scientists think these pictures were drawn about 50,000 years ago.

Socialite Will Wed Locally

Houston socialite Beverly Wilson Bennett and Broadway actor Roy Alan Wilson will wed Saturday, April 6, and prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that Texans still do ride off into the sunset.

The wedding will take place at the bride's 150-acre horse ranch (Lazy B Running Horse Ranch), near Waller.

The scenario is pure Texan: bride and her escorts arrive from guest house in an antique carriage; path and carriage alike decorated with spring flowers. Bride and groom will be bedecked in French birch leather. They will take their vows in the outdoor ranch setting, then join guests in a fairy tale Mexican fiesta buffet reception and dancing under the stars and full moon. This gala will include entertainment from a sharpshooter, a magician and two bands. To complete the scene, bride and groom will exit the reception on matching black stallions, as fireworks blaze in the sky overhead.

This event will truly be a Wilson happening, with the entire bridal party: Rene Bennett, Audra Bennett, Alayna Bennett and Archie Bennett III, Matthew Bennett and Monty Bennett, being children of the bride. The bride's escorts are her brothers Welcome Wilson Sr. and Jack E. Wilson and the ceremony is being performed by the Reverend Albert J. Wilson, the groom's father.

Some 400-plus guests will attend and the guest list reads like a Who's Who, with such luminaries as Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Borgnine, Juliet Prowse, Vice-President and Mrs. George Bush and Adrien Arpel.

Houston celebrities attending will include Ned Battista, director of the Houston Pops Orchestra; Frank Young, director of Theater Under the Stars; Norwin and Isabell Gerhart and Senator Jack Ogg.

When Broadway meets Houston, there promises to be a very happy ending - and getting there is more than half the fun.

from the highway will be a multi-story library. Construction is scheduled to begin promptly. The change in the campus look was pointed out as new landscaping and lawn care as new landscaping and lawns are now getting consistent attention.

The chamber members and guests were greeted at Alumni Hall with lovely table settings of University China, silver and glassware on blue linen table cloths. Each, large round table seated eight and was centered with fresh cut flower arrangements for the occasion. The dinner was served buffet style by students dressed in white serving jackets.

The meal included fresh tossed salad, chicken fried steak, roast beef, green beans, mashed potatoes and fruit cobbler for dessert. The university staff and students were gracious hosts for the chamber dinner meeting.

President Tim Phelan awarded new membership plaques and Theresa Miller told of the up-coming Easter Egg hunt, scheduled for April 6 at Holleman Elementary. She urged chamber members to be there at 8 a.m. to have eggs hidden in time for the 10 a.m. hunt.

He loves me...he loves me not...to pick...or...not to pick

THAT IS THE QUESTION

By K. Single

Tracking the footsteps of my childhood, I remember a time when my girlfriend, Trina, and I sat in the backyard giggling with one another. We each held, in one small hand, a delicate golden dandelion. We'd hold the dandelion up to each other's chin and say, "Do you like butter?" and if, under your chin, there appeared a hue of gold, the answer was "yes!"

We would then glance at each other and begin a verse of "He loves me, he loves me not..." consecutively pulling out one petal after another; one petal for "he loves me," the next petal for "he loves me not," and on and on, until we reached the final petal and then, we laughed together again.

Harmless, you say...of course. We were innocent children, playing an innocent game. Besides, we only annihilated a couple of Taraxacum officinales (dandelions) the well-known yellow flowered plant of the chicory family, which is abundant as a weed. We obviously didn't play the game with our beloved Bluebonnets, which finally gets me to the true subject matter of this writing.

Spring has sprung: right now, today! We are witnessing the glories of plant life rising from the good earth. As I travel the roads of Austin County, I am in awe of the hues of blue, purple, orange and yellow beginning to fill our prairies. The two most common and the only two endemic species of Bluebonnets in the State of Texas are: 1) The Sandyland Bluebonnet (Lupinus subcarnosus) and 2) The Texas Bluebonnet (Lupinus texensis) which we all know is our state flower...or is it?

Actually, in 1901 the Sandyland species was adopted as the Texas State Flower. It is not as "showy" as the Texas Bluebonnet is, though. Now, don't get me wrong, the Sandyland Bluebonnet is beautiful and is fragile. However, it does not have the multitude of blooms on its stalk as does the Texas Bluebonnet. As time went by, Texans were indecisive. Which species of Bluebonnet should be our state flower? In 1971, to end the dispute, the following policy was adopted: all, each and ever Lupinus taxa, occurring naturally in this grand state, is to become our state flower... flowers!

Lupinus comes from the Latin word lupus, meaning wolf. The Lupine was once thought of as a plant that robbed the soil of its mineral contents, just as wolves robbed the shepherds. However, lupine really puts nitrogen into the soil, leaving the earth richer than before.

The lupines also have their own source of heating element. Their leaves follow the sun's path from morning to dusk, folding complete- (See Question, Pg. 10)

Dr. Richard Redfield

The Eyesight Of Texas

Dear Dr. Redfield,

I have a problem with my night vision, especially if I have to drive. During the day, I feel that I can see very well, but at night, things are much more difficult to see. What would cause this problem?

RRH

Dear RRH,

Your difficulty with seeing at night could stem from one of a couple of possibilities. If you have more difficulty adapting to dimly lit environments, you may be experiencing a problem associated with a disorder called refinitis pigmentosa (R.P.). R.P. is a slow degeneration of the retina which causes initial changes in your peripheral vision and dark adaptation. A thorough investigation of the retina and peripheral vision should be done by your eye doctor if R.P. is suspected

More commonly, night vision problems are related to something called night myopia, or night nearsightedness. At night we have fewer visual cues and therefore it becomes more difficult for our eyes to focus. To try to keep things as clear as possible in dimly lit situations, the eye may over-focus and assume a nearsighted posture. This over compensation then brings on more blur instead of making things more clear at night. People who experience night-myopia may need a pair of glasses for night vision or a pair that has a different power than what they use for day vision. If you do experience a distinct change in your vision at night, for whatever reason, your situation should be thoroughly investigated so that you may be advised by your doctor for your own safety.

Waller Gatherings

By Kathleen

Maxie O'Neal, with her two brothers and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Green and Mr. and Mrs. Julius Green, attended the wedding of their nephew, Troy Green and his bride, Janett Jeffers. The wedding was performed at Hurst Baptist Church, with 350 guests attending. The reception was held at Tower Hotel and Ballroom, Fort Worth, for about 250 guests. Maxie said everything was just perfect. We offer congratulations and may everything always be just right for Troy and Jannett.

Last Friday morning brought much happiness to Robin Knoble, her husband and family. A little baby girl was born to Robin at Memorial Norwest Hospital. The mother and baby are both doing well. We are happy for you and may God bless you both.

Ruth Middleton had a birthday Thursday. Travis (among other gifts) presented her with a most beautiful China musical jewelry box. It is shaped like a violin and the artist's design of "Romance," really fit the occasion.

Thelma Farr, her sister, gave a birthday party in her home, with many guests attending and helping celebrate the happy day. "Little Red," the Middleton's granddaughter, is visiting them. She also went to the party. Her name is Stacey, but she has the prettiest red hair you can imagine, and such a brilliant, yet "impish" personality, that "Little Red" just fits.

Max Aaron (Shorty) from the Country Junction Flea Market, finally took a much deserved vacation. He's always ready to lend a helping hand to anyone needing it; also he works day and night to keep up his job, too. Max and a friend, Duane, took a trip to Las Vegas. They were caught in that bad wind and dust storm just out of Vegas. They saw the storm ripping across in front of them. There was an 18-car pileup in it. Max said if they had been five minutes sooner, they would have been in the very worst part of it. He said he certainly had not failed to thank God for his care. He really had a good time and enjoyed just being on vacation.

Wishing you all great happiness during this beautiful Easter season.

Jo Shelton reported on the new Community Profile, now available through the Waller Chamber of Commerce. It was compiled and produced with the help of the Houston Lighting and Power Company. The profile gives information on population from 1970 to 1983, taxation rates for the area, as well as local government services provided and revenues expended. Dr. Pierre mentioned the 42-bed hospital located on the campus of Prairie View. It is the same physical size as the hospital serving the students of A&M in College Station and therefore has a capacity greater than the present need of the student body. He suggested that the facility may be used in some way to help ease the hospital problem that has recently developed in Waller County.

John Busby Will Run For Council

(Editor's Note: Last week, The Hotline presented short interviews along with the pictures of four of the five candidates for Hempstead City Council. We were unable to reach John Busby for inclusion in last week's article. Here, then, is his statement regarding his reasons for seeking election to the City Council).

John Busby is an industrial education teacher in the Cypress-Fairbanks Independent School District, who graduated from Hempstead High School, while living in a rural part of the district. He moved into the City of Hempstead two years ago and has been attending City Council meetings for the past year and a-half.

"I'm concerned about our citizens, the growth and development of our community to meet our citizens' needs," he says.

"I feel it is time for all citizens to have a voice in our local government and to feel comfortable about bringing their problems with city services to light without fear of the situation getting worse. As a city councilman, I will remember that my decision should be made with all the people in mind."

Busby adds, "I hear the stories about the lack of funds being Hempstead's problem and there is a lot of truth to that, I'm sure. But, when there appears to be over-spending in various departments, wouldn't that equal less money available for city improvements?"

Busby admits that "no one person can solve all the problems of this city," but adds, "but if elected city councilman, my concerns for the welfare of our citizens will motivate me to work harder to solve more of them."
