An Awakening

By NAPOLÉON D. EDWARDS

The cool South breeze is stowing

Over the lane

And angel-children are soaring

Out in the tree

And Mother Earth sits, on her bower

Of purple green

And honey bees are humming about

And break the dream

And running times are climbing

The spring races

And piping weasles are chattering

For hunsome mates

And violets are blooming about

In毎 blue

And tallow are piling rose heads out

Of April dew.

And helping hands are gaining much

To proud and young

And helves and Bowses are sashing

About

And all the dainties and dizes

Are out in bloom

And the woods are filled with perfume

And sweet perfume.
