Man, Faith and Hope

The chubby little boy with laughing brown eyes had been stricken with a malady which defied efforts of specialists to render a positive diagnosis. Medical doctors, pediatric diagnosticians, and research specialists were unable to say with assurance that he was ill of this or that disease. Undaunted, however, they ran tests, prescribed medicaments for the alleviation of pain, and sometimes joined his parents in their constant vigil beside his bed. Everything that modern medical science had to offer in a modern hospital was available and put to use without apparent signs of improvement or recovery. Finally, with professional honesty, the doctors told his parents that the little boy's chances for recovery were practically nonexistent. For gone from his cheeks was the color of life, from his eyes the beauty of childish expression and understanding.

And what do parents do when they receive news of this nature? Tear their hair? give over to hopeless fits of depression? Or do they ask their specialists to continue treatments and keep their faith in prayer and God? Somehow, painful though it must have been, this little boy's parents did the latter. Spiritually, then, clasping his stubby, boyish fingers, they joined him in his walk down the valley of the shadow of death fearing no evil. For the road does not end in the valley, it only branches off, and the branch chosen for them was the one that leads upward through the tortuous, craggy heights of recovery.

Thus, it sometimes happens that when men reach the limits of their knowledge faith and hope take over. And it is through the efforts of this combination: man, faith and hope, that the eyes of this chubby little boy will laugh again.

For Your Information

The Art Exhibit scheduled for Friday June 24 will interest teachers and principals in elementary schools. Mrs Marguerite Randall is a talented artist and her success in teaching art to young boys and girls is rather remarkable. Plan now to attend this show.
