ANY WEEK

The Prairie View Employees Federal Credit Union continues the service of cashing government savings bonds for shareholders as well as for others who might need this service.

Typical Prairie View Credit Union Official

"Director Dooley began his active duties in this office (Treasurer) in June 1943 and has continued them since then with efficiency, initiative, and admirable diligence. All who have approached him on credit union business have found him patiently courteous and respectfully businesslike. We regret that the organization must lose his services in the capacity named."

---From the Annual Report January 1948

YOUR WEEK

Scene In Passing

Willow Joyce Evelyn Martin going to the fiscal office each morning laden with fiscal red-tape. . . Capable Evelyn Lewis of the Registrar's Office giving the morning mail a searching ruffle with an "anticipatory gleam" in her eyes. . . Urbane Melvin B Tolson with his holder-held cigarette cocked at the approved FDRish angle. . . Beau Brummelish Professor R B Jefferson philosophically puffing away at his favorite pipe. . . Captain Wejay Bundara sporting his Dewey-like mustache and a Lawson-strung racket improving his court (tennis, Mr Boyer) game. . . The hospital's Dr Van E Collins surrounded, and trying to explain to a group of under 7 year-old small fry why the little box he carried contained, of all things, teeth. . . Gentlemanly Dr J H Windom studiously bent over papers and books in his office after 10:00 o'clock one night. . . Portly Col West A Hamilton hammering away at a typewriter long after the chickens were asleep. . . Busy Mr C L Wilson, another burner of the midnight oil, relaxing over his drafting board. . . Mrs Thomas Wilborn and girlish Jessie L Jacobs, both of the fiscal office, trying to hit a tennis ball that was never quite where it should have been. . . Amiable Mrs Bessie Richardson dispensing $20.00 bills with great facility - a study in nonchalance. . . Mr Lee C Phillip, college minister, in one of his many sidewalk conferences. . . Queenly Miss M E Suarez walking toward the cafeteria wearing ever so lightly her crown which sparkles with the jewels of charm, grace, and human dignity.
