City of dreams

The night comes alive as Chelsea Glenn reigns at the Lady of the Dove Pageant

By Olivia Johnson

News Assistant

The fourth annual Lady of the Dove Scholarship Pageant entitled 'City of Dreams' was held last Wednesday, March 27.

The Lady of the Dove Pageant was presented by the brothers of Phi Beta Sigma. The pageant consisted of five contestants – Chelcia Greer, Jaya McNair, Jasmine Pitts, Andrea Stancil, and Chelsea Glenn.

Each contestant competed in four different categories consisting of active wear, talent, impromptu question, and evening wear.

The contestants were also judged on a private interview, which took place earlier that day.

The pageant began with the active wear category. Each contestant had a descriptive costume accompanied with music.

The costumes of this category ranged from army fatigues to 1930s wear to a baseball uniform.

The participants all chose great costumes to accompany their music.

The most interesting category of the evening was the talent portion of the pageant. Each contestant displayed incredible talent.

There were several contestants who used dance as their talent.

One contestant used a dramatic poem for her talent and another did a martial arts routine complete with knives, dancing, and gymnastics.

All of the routines were unique and entertaining.

The impromptu question was the next category of the evening.

Each contestant was asked a question concerning today's current issues and had to give a quick response.

The questions covered an array of subjects, including Martin Luther King's dream, leadership and morals, child endangerment, and other important topics.

The ladies of the evening were prepared and each one gave a good answer to their question.

The last category of the evening was the evening wear portion. Each contestant chose a dress, which accentuated their distinctive features.

The dresses were of several different colors including a deep purple, a shimmering gold, and a dazzling ice pink.

The pageant also included a performance by the group Bege't who sang a melody of show tunes and songs.

Miss Lady of the Dove 2001, Marianna Wright, also displayed her skills through a small impromptu skit and Eric Blaylock rocked the crowd with his poem titled 'Deep', a story of how the sun met the moon.

As Marianna Wright gave her farewell speech, the anticipation rose for the winner of this year's pageant.

All of the contestants were exceptional, but there could only be one winner.

Congratulations to Ms. Chelsea Glenn, the 2002 Miss Lady of the Dove.

Sophomore Chelsea Glenn was the winner of the 2002 Lady of the Dove pageant.

Professor proposes creative writing program

By Christina Johnson

Special to the Panther

English majors across the country are rapidly declining. But at Prairie View A&M University, the languages and communications department is making moves to keep the English program strong.

One initiative is the introduction of a creative writing minor spearheaded by Dr. Robert Kirschten.

With support from Dr. Dejun Liu, head of department, and Dr. Gerard Rambally, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, Kirschten has proposed a plan to offer creative writing as a minor option.

"Creative writing is now becoming a very enjoyable and productive academic discipline throughout the country," Kirschten says.

The creative writing minor would be the first of its kind at Prairie View. The program would be open to all students regardless of major.

Those who wish to obtain a degree minor will take a total of 18 semester credit hours. Four courses (12 credit hours) will be in the writing of poetry, drama, and prose fiction.

Courses will include Introduction to Creative Writing, Creative Writing Poetry and Prose, Dramatic Screenwriting, and Film/Scriptwriting.

Do not think you will only be reading poetry and novels by authors such as Shakespeare and William Faulkner in the classes. That's

Attorney with cannons

The Clinton's

HILLSBORO, Mo. — An eastern Missouri lawyer was charged Monday with unlawful use of a weapon for the booby-traps a sheriff's deputy found in his garage. John Kessler of Cedar Hill had shotgun shells packed with shrapnel loaded into plastic tubes, investigators said. The homemade cannons were designed to detonate at anyone who entered Kessler's garage and flipped on the light switch. The deputy who found the traps was checking the garage because of past burglaries there. He discovered the setup after looking inside with a flashlight. Kessler is the son of attorney Morris Kessler, who went to jail in 1993 for his involvement in the Second Injury Fund scandal. A scheme to defraud the fund allegedly was designed to swell the coffers of Republican Bill Webster's 1992 campaign for governor.

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Former U.S. President Bill Clinton, his wife, Sen. Hillary Clinton, have arrived for a second straight holiday in the Dominican Republic, this year with their daughter, Chelsea, a spokesman for the resort said Monday.

The Clintons flew in a private plane Saturday to Punta Cana Airport, at the easternmost tip of the Caribbean country, 205 kilometers (128 miles) from the capital, said Manuel Quiterio Cedeno, spokesman for Punta Cana Resort and Club.

For a second straight year, Dominican fashion designer Oscar de la Renta was hosting the Clintons at his villa in the exclusive resort, known for its security and privacy.

Bill and Hillary Clinton stayed at the villa last year, also around Easter, but without Chelsea. The Clintons were scheduled to return to the United States on April 6, he said.

On Sunday, the Clintons attended a Catholic church service to celebrate Easter, and then had lunch at Spanish singer Julio Iglesias' home, also at the resort.

April fools jokes

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Gov. Jesse Ventura emerged from his office for a news conference Monday clad in black, with a stern look on his face. He had two important things to say. The first: "I'm here to tell you this morning that yes, I will be seeking another term as governor of the state of Minnesota." The second: "April Fools." Ventura has declined for months to say whether he will run for a second term in November, and he said after Monday's prank that he still hasn't made up his mind. Ventura, elected in 1998 as a third-party candidate, has been slipping in popularity recently.

DALLAS (AP)

Just two days before Texas Tech plans to announce a finalist or finalists for its chancellor's post, the Dallas school board trustees met Monday night to revise the contract for Dallas Superintendent Mike Moses — a possible candidate for the spot.

Moses is frequently mentioned as a possible successor to John Montford as chancellor at Texas Tech, according to the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal. The newspaper reports that David Smith, current interim chancellor, is also frequently mentioned.

"We want to make it nearly impossible to have him be tempted," Dallas school board President Ken Zornes told The Dallas Morning News in its online edition Monday. "He's being recruited, there's no question about it."

Trustees called the meeting to see about sprucing up a contract that now pays Moses $294,000 a year. His contract runs through 2006.

"Our goal is to keep a good superintendent. That's part of why we're meeting this evening. We're going to try to make the situation where he wants to stay a long time," trustee Roxan Staff said.

Montford received a salary of $363,592 before leaving the Texas Tech chancellor's job last year for work in the private sector.

The Texas Tech regents will hold a special meeting Wednesday to discuss the chancellor's position and name a finalist or finalists. If a finalist emerges, regents would have enough time to wait a required 21 days before offering the job and still have a new chancellor for the final board meeting of the school year on May 9.

I'm sick and tired of being sick and tired

Dear Editor,

My problem is not with the school per say but it is an issue that very few know about but many of us face. Every year about this time I am given an FAFSA to fill out. On this federal document there are two parts: one for the student, the other for my parent or guardian. For the second time in my college experience I have been denied financial aid.

Fortunately, I am blessed because my mother has a good job and is able to support me as best she can. Unfortunately, my mother has other bills to pay and cannot always afford my college education. I assume, because my mother works, the government thinks she can afford everything that is thrown her way. That is not true. At some point everyone needs help.

Every year I am forced to pay PV out-of-state tuition and give the Village the rest out of my own pocket. I am grateful that I can call on my family to help me when needed; it is true it does "take a village to raise a child".

Since I have come to PVI I have seen many others in my situation. Often they have brothers and sisters that their parents must help support

Letter See page 5

Dear Editor:

I am writing a letter to you about the issue of parking here at Prairie View A&M University. I think that there needs to be something done to make parking better for everyone. A high percentage of our students have cars. I think it should be easier for everyone to park closer to the building they're going to. I think a good solution to this would be to demolish some of the buildings that are not being used. This is not an issue of being lazy or that we can't walk where we need to go, this is about convenience.

There are also some effects of not having enough parking: a lot more tickets have been given out because we are having to park on the side of the street and a lot of traffic has come about because people are looking for places to park. I really think we, as a university, should take the time to consider this situation because it has been going on for a while.

Thank You,

Takisha Cozart

Dancing their way to the top

Classic Dance Ensemble prepares for national competition

The Classic Dance Ensemble has had a tedious year of preparing for the chance to show their stuff at the national competition

By Deondra Dockery
Special to the Panther

On March 13-16, 2002 the ladies of Classic Dance Ensemble (CDE) had the distinguished honor and privilege to participate in the American Dance College Festival at the University of Texas campus.

Classic Dance Ensemble has made history because they are the first HBCU to attend the national convention. They earned this honor by competing among predominantly white colleges and universities. Judged by three distinguished adjudicators, "Girl Talk" was definitely the crowd's favorite. Classic Dance Ensemble has also challenged the typical stereotypes because they were invited to dance at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. on May 13-16, 2002.

"Girl Talk" a text, (verbal) dance that was choreographed by Ms. Danyale Taylor depicts the everyday life of young, black females and what they talk about with their girlfriends.

"Girl Talk" has been known to catch the audience's attention and keeps them laughing. "It was a different type of atmosphere than we are used to. I am glad that we had the opportunity to show them what PVAMU is made of," said Ayana Crichlow, president.

Classic Dance Ensemble members have to be well-rounded dancers who are willing to challenge themselves with various techniques such as tap, ballet, modern, and jazz. Classic Dance Ensemble needs the support of the staff and the students. They are trying to raise money to pay travel expenses to Washington. Any donations will be gladly appreciated.

Talley starting to make a come back

Press Release
Special to the Panther

In the summer of 2000, Rev. Clarence Talley, Sr., Professor of Art at Prairie View A&M University, traveled with a group of educators to Tanzania, East Africa as part of the Fulbright-Hays Group Project Abroad program.

As part of his tour of East Africa, Rev. Talley compiled over fourteen hundred photographic images. A selection of these images and new works is now part of an exhibition titled "A View of Africa."

The exhibit will be on display in the John B. Coleman Library Gallery on the campus of PVAMU, April 8 through August 31, 2002 during regular hours. An opening reception is scheduled for Wednesday April 10, 6:00- 7:00 pm.

According to Dr. Fredoline Anunobi, Director for the Center for International and Area Studies whose office organized the Group Project Abroad, "the exhibition is more than a culmination of Rev. Talley's international study.

It is more than a visual report on his travels. It is a work in progress. Anunobi continues, "Rev. Talley's exquisite photographs and other works give a unique glimpse of Tanzanian culture. They open a window to a whole new world. Sharing these images makes us more aware of our place in the global community."

The exhibit is enhanced with a limited edition poster along with a well designed catalog detailing the artist's trip: beginning with a leg by leg account on the day of departure from Houston In-not the basis of the program. "We're going to write and read about your families-real human stuff-poetry and novels about people and things we care about in the real world," Kirschten states. "Creative writing encompasses all disciplines-theatre arts, communications- it's not just for English majors."

Kirschten, a native of Chicago, joined the faculty of Prairie View A&M University last fall. He earned an undergraduate degree in English from DePaul University and a master's and Ph.D. from the University of Chicago. Kirschten has attended the American Film Institute in California and has a background in screenwriting and broad comedy. He has edited and written more than ten books and seven screenplays and is currently working on getting his screenplay, Hotel School, a comedy, sold and produced.

"If all goes well, we hope to have a couple of creative writing classes going next spring," he says. "With the support of Dean Rambally, we hope to get the entire program going, but we have to work through the Texas system."

If this program is started, Kirschten hopes it will be used as a recruiting tool to bring more English majors to Prairie View. "If we can get creative writing people from across disciplines in the university over to the department, they're going to see how attractive our creative writing program/English program can be." Initially, professors that are currently in the department will be teaching the classes, but hopefully after a while, visiting professors will start coming in. "Prairie View is starting to expand its national scope, and with a program like this, we can bring all kinds of people to the school," Kirschten added.

As part of its creative efforts, the Department of Languages and Communications also will continue publishing Ebon Dialect, a literary publication established in 1994 by Professor William Chapman. The publication is a forum for students to exhibit their writing talents.

tercontinental Airport to the group's arrival at the Dar es Salaam International Airport. Other chapters in the catalog describe the artist's visit to the terrorist-bombed American embassy and the famed city of Bagamoya; the destination of slave caravans from the interior of East and Central Africa. Also visited was the Island of Zanzibar, a place where time has stood still. There on the island is the historic Anglican Church of Christ Cathedral. The church sits on the very site where slaves were held prior to auction. A visit to its eerie chambers beneath the church is not soon forgotten.

His art has been exhibited nationally and internationally in galleries and museums: Muse D'Art, Port Au Prince; University of West Indies, Trinidad; Museum of Modern Art, Santa Domingo; Corcoran Gallery, Washington D.C.; St. Bernadette Institute of Art, New Mexico; Light of the Word Mission Gallery, Techny, Illinois; Museum of Science and Industry, Chicago, Illinois; and Morris Brown College-Hodge Art Gallery, Atlanta, Ga.

He has published extensively in the area of art and theology. He has two books to his credit A Call from God and The Call for the Prophet.

Rev. Talley is listed in "250 Years of Afro American Art," "Who's Who in the South and Southwest," "Who's Who Among African Americans," "Who's Who Among American Teachers" Art in American: Guides of Museums and Galleries," "Directory of People of Color in the Visual Arts," "American Artist of the Region," and "Outstanding Young Men of America."

The exhibition is made possible by a Research Enhancement Mini-Grant from the Office of Research and Development and further supported by the School of Architecture, Prairie View A&M University.

stopped falling. Indiana made just two of its 11 shots from behind the arc and its dream of being the first No. 5 seed to win a national championship started to fade.

Kyle Hornsby led Indiana with 14 points and Dane Fife added 11. Jeffries, the Big Ten's player of the year, finished with eight points on 4-for-11 shooting. The Hoosiers finished 20-for-58 from the field (34.5 percent), the first time in the tournament they shot below 50 percent.

The Terrapins, who won 19 of their last 20 games, again were big on the boards, finishing with a 42-31 rebound advantage.

Maryland was among the country's highest scoring teams at 85 points per game, but its third-lowest total of the season was good enough to make it the 33rd school to win the national championship and the second straight from the Atlantic Coast Conference following Duke last season.

Where did you get your compassion?

Things like love, self-sacrifice, mercy, compassion — where do these come from? If we're merely products of physical evolution, "survival of the fittest," why would we care about one another? And how do we explain a predominant law in the conscience of most people that says certain acts — child abuse, rape, murder, theft — are wrong?

Isn't it possible our conscience comes from a God who cares about the decisions and actions of humanity? A God who's much more than a vague, generic life force? ### One Shining Moment

By Marvin Anderson
Sports Editor

Monday's national championship game concluded what could be described as arguably one of the most unpredictable college basketball seasons ever.

No.1 seed and potential Final Four participant Cincinnati, was dismissed in the second round by UCLA, setting the stage for what would become this year's NCAA Tournament.

Other powerhouses that had early exits were Florida, Michigan State, USC, and Alabama.

Everyone's favorite underdog, Kent State, smashed their Cinderella persona, and proved to all of America they weren't lucky but could just really play.

Indiana's Cinderella season provided one of the most shocking upsets in their Elite 8 defeat of reigning and potential national champ Duke.

Maryland's win over Indiana provided the climax to what had been a year long journey beginning in last year's Final Four.

What makes the "Terps" victory even more special is the fact that their three best players are all seniors.

Aside from "UConn's" undefeated record (39-0), and all out dominance of the women's game, this season has contained many unexpected endings. The Huskies won all their games by an average of 36-points per game.

This year's NCAA tournament provided excitement, spontaneity, and emotion which is what March Madness is all about.

Maryland wins first ever NCAA National Championship

By Associated Press
ESPN.com

ATLANTA (AP) -- A star who stepped up and a tightly wound coach -- a match made in Maryland, and good enough to turn the Terrapins into national champions.

With All-American guard Juan Dixon snapping out of a scoring drought just in time, Maryland ended Indiana's magical tournament run with a 64-52 victory Monday night.

This was the Terrapins' first appearance in a national championship game and the senior-laden lineup came through over the final 9:42, pulling away from the Hoosiers to become the fourth straight No. 1 seed to win it all.

Coach Gary Williams guided his alma mater from the depths of probation 13 years ago to the pinnacle of college basketball. He let his intense demeanor melt long enough to celebrate with his team, which featured four players who had started at least 100 games in their careers.

"We had to really grind it," he said. "It took us a good 25 minutes before we really ran our offense. Not many coaches get a chance to coach three great seniors like this. It was a thrill for me to watch these guys work hard and get their reward."

Dixon scored at least 27 points in four of the first five tournament games, including 33 in the semifinal win over fellow top seed Kansas. He started the title game at that pace, scoring 11 points in the opening 10 minutes. He didn't score again for 20 minutes.

When he hit a 3-pointer with 9:42 to play, it gave Maryland (32-4) the lead for good at 45-44 and the Terrapins made sure even a small lead was safe this time.

"I was trying to be patient," said Dixon. "I was trying to let the game come to me. I hit a big shot."

Dixon finished with 18 points and he and fellow senior Lonny Baxter combined for all the points in the 9-2 run that Dixon started with the 3 and Baxter ended with a dunk that made it 51-46 with 7:22 to play.

"It's like I'm dreaming right now because I'm part of a national championship team," Dixon said. "A lot of people at home counted me out at home. But I got better each year."

Indiana (25-12), which upset top-seeded Duke then shocked second-seeded Oklahoma in the semifinals, just couldn't come up with another stunner.

The team that had the country almost forgetting about Bob Knight, again used the 3-point shot as its main weapon.

The Hoosiers, who were 23-for-32 from behind the arc in the regional final against Kent State and Oklahoma, made eight of their first 12 Monday night. When Jared Jeffries' layup was goaltended with 9:53 left, Indiana had its only lead of the game, 44-42.

When Dixon and Baxter, who finished with 15 points and 14 rebounds, stepped up, the long shots

- 1. Why are people making bomb threats to the Panther office because of 20 questions? 2. Are the Deltas so desperate that they have started stealing outfits from the AKAs? Shouldn't they be stealing steps? 3. Why did the Sigmas throw up that boot leg city background at the Dove pageant? 4. Who is the guy who brings his clothes to the washateria in a trash can with wheels? 5. Who was that girl on the front page last week? 6. Why do people submit questions to The Panther and get mad if the person mentioned finds out who did it? 7. Tell the truth, you go to T-town every Friday don't you? 8. What are the AKAs doing to win all these stepshows? 9. Why were the Alphas and Kappas fighting again? 10. Why are babies living in Phase 1 and 2? 11. Was God or her mother pleased with that praise dance at the Lady of the Dove pageant? 12. Why were the campus police chasing dogs off campus in their cars? 13. Way to get that concert at Spring Fest, Lance? 14. Doesn't Spring Fest get worse over the years? 15. Who has the biggest ego in Classic Dance Ensemble? 16. Why don't they recognize 3.0 at honors convocation anymore? 17. Do you get more recognition if you make a 2.0? 18. Doesn't T.C. look like Shirley on What's Happening Now? 19. If twenty questions is so mean why are you reading them? 20. What do you think?

Want to tell us what you think? Would you like to submit any questions you may have to The Panther? Please bring your comments to Rm.105 Harrington Science or email panther@pvamu.edu. Questions are printed at the discretion of The Panther.
